Now before the Court is Claimant's so-styled administrative motion to strike the United States' motion to strike Claimant's claim. ECF No. 67 ("Mot."). Ironically, in seeking to strike the motion to strike for failing to comply with the local rules, Claimant's counsel failed to comply with the local rules. See Civ. L.R. 7-11 (defining the circumstances in which an administrative motion is appropriate). A motion to strike is not appropriately filed and decided as an administrative motion. Accordingly Claimant's motion to strike the Government's motion to strike is

1 STRICKEN.

2       Nonetheless, Claimant has a point. The Government's initial 3 motion to strike arguably suffers from the same defect the Court
4 pointed out with the Government's earlier attempted cross-motion
5 for summary judgment. See ECF No. 49 ("Cross-Motion Order") 6 (discussing the failure to notice a permissible hearing date under 7 the local rules). The Local Rules require a moving party to notice
8 a hearing date and time "in one filed document . . . ." Civ. L.R.
9 7-2(a) (emphasis added). The fact that the undersigned's courtroom
10 deputy was unavailable on the date the Government's counsel chose 11 to file the motion to strike does not exempt the Government's 12 counsel from this requirement. More troubling still is the 13 (apparently uncontroverted) suggestion that in filing the motion to 14 strike the Government did not first meet and confer with opposing 15 counsel regarding the issues raised in the motion as required under 16 Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 37(a)(1). Mot. at 2. Given the 17 notice and accompanying supplemental answers recently filed by 18 Claimant, it appears such a meet-and-confer would have been 19 productive and spared the Court both the instant motion and perhaps 20 the Government's motion to strike. See ECF No. 68-1. Setting 21 this aside, the Court does not believe that striking the 22 Government's motion to strike is the best course of action.

23       Instead, the Court merely notes its disapproval of the 24 increasing gamesmanship in this case. The Court's prior 25 admonishment that it would strike portions of future filings that 26 did not comply with the local rules was an attempt to encourage 27 order and civility in this case -- not to encourage the parties to 28 file motions like this. See Cross-Motion Order at 3 n.1. Counsel

1 for both sides are experienced lawyers with extensive experience
2 handling asset forfeiture cases and practicing in this judicial 3 district (and opposite one another). At this point, the Court does 4 not doubt counsels' good faith, but hopes that the parties will 5 heed the applicable procedural rules going forward.

6 In light of the presently tangled procedural posture and the 7 potential confusion on applicable deadlines, the Court hereby 8 ORDERS the following:

10 currently scheduled for this Friday, August 8 at 10:00 AM is 11 VACATED.

16 States' Special Interrogatories, ECF No. 68-1, within nine (9)
17 days of the signature date of this order, on Friday, August 18 15, 2014.
- 19 • The Government shall file a supplemental brief of no more than 20 five (5) pages limited to arguments responsive to those raised
21 in Claimant's supplemental brief on the newly served Amended

23 Interrogatories, ECF No. 68-1, seven (7) days later, on 24 Friday, August 22, 2014.
- 25 • Once the Government files its supplemental brief, the Motion
26 for Summary Judgment will be taken under submission and no
27 argument will be held unless otherwise ordered. See Civ. L.R.
